RE: OSHA

The attached is an excerpt from an article entitled "Joe Dear: OSHA Needs Reform." It refers to Dear's testimony before Senate and House committees supporting the Comprehensive Occupational Safety and Health Reform Act (COSHRA).

According to the article "Deputy Secretary of Labor Thomas Glynn told all agency heads that priority standards must be completed within 18 months of being started. No rule should take more than 37 months to be completed." The article continues on to summarize the rest of the letter written by Glynn.

The article appeared in the March 1994 issue of Occupational Hazards.
